Simon Doonan on Mundo Meza

Sunday, November 19, 2017, 3pm

West Hollywood Council Chambers
625 North San Vicente Boulevard
West Hollywood, CA 90069

Admission is free. Priority seating for MOCA members.

Simon Doonan is a celebrated window dresser, cultural critic, author, and creative ambassador-at-large for Barneys New York. In the early 1980s, Doonan collaborated with artist Mundo Meza (1955–1985) on window displays at West Hollywood boutiques including Maxfield Bleu. In conjunction with Axis Mundo: Queer Networks in Chicano L.A., Doonan will discuss his collaborations with Meza and the intersection of artistic, fashion, and club cultures during that prolific time in Los Angeles. Available Now: Transgender History Panels

In honor of Transgender Awareness Month, we are thrilled to announce the launch of ONE Archives Foundation’s new Transgender History Panels, which are now available to educators, universities, corporations, and community organizations. Learn more about how to acquire the series by visiting our website.

The Panels make visible the stories of those who boldly challenged gender conventions in the early 20th century; the history of healthcare for transgender people, the visibility and resources created by transgender heroes such as Sir Lady Java, Christine Jorgensen, and Reed Erickson; pre-Stonewall uprisings by gender variant individuals; the sacrifice and impact of Marsha P. Johnson and Sylvia Rivera; the resilient transgender youth redefining gender and representation; and transgender-led organizations that tirelessly advocate for transgender people in Los Angeles and the United States.

The Transgender History Panels are on display at the Los Angeles City Hall through January 2, 2018. They will also be on display at various locations and events throughout the City of West Hollywood during the month of November. We hope you have an opportunity to view the exhibitions in the coming weeks and learn more about our History Panels Series!
